5km handicap December 2024

There was only one PB in this final round of 2024, but what a PB it was. Carys Samuel knocked a further 1 minute 20 seconds off the PB she set last month, for what was her sixth PB of the year. This was even more notable bearing in mind that she had already improved her PB by 1min 39 secs in 2023. This latest performance propelled her into the top 10 fastest female Quakers of all-time at Darlington parkrun (ninth to be precise).

Chris Clark has set nine PBs this year, so didn't even need to turn up for this round, but he did and put in another solid performance to take second. Rachel Grayson was just 11 seconds off her recent PB, which was good enough for third. In fourth Jo Meynell was almost two minutes off her PB but her PB was so long ago that her age grading was much better, once again proof that you don't need to get faster you just need to get older. Also beating their age grading handicap in fifth and sixth, were Helen Clark and Carmelita Coco, who have both been in the top ten for every one of their ten qualifying rounds. Gill Colling has had a late flourish this year, improving on her best age grading three times in the past two months and while she couldn't repeat that in December she still managed a sub-30 minute time for seventh place. Having been very subdued for all of 2023 and for eleven months of 2024, Ed Griffiths stepped up several gears in December to register his all-time second and fourth best age grading performances in consecutive weeks. I don't think many of us will be keeping up with him in 2025. A bit like Halley's Comet, Marc Ellis completed one of his occasional but brilliant orbits for ninth, while also in the top ten was Lisa Bowerbank (because of course she was).

Chris Clark had the overall competition wrapped up last month but the battle for second could not have been closer. Literally could not have been closer, as Carys Samuel and Jo Meynell both ended up with 962 points so will both have to squeeze up a bit on the silver medal step of the podium.

The next five places of Helen Clark, Carmelita Coco, Emily Beaumont, Lisa Bowerbank and Rob Gillham stayed exactly the same, but the battle for the last place in the top ten wasn't won by any of the people who I had calculated were in contention. What I hadn't realised was that Rachel Grayson had only done nine rounds up to November and her third place finish meant that she leap-frogged into ninth. Rachel has not finished lower than sixth in any round that she's done since June but unfortunately didn't have any rounds spare to swap for her low scores earlier in the year.

Finishing in tenth for his first time in the top ten was Ian Burgess. Ian has been running well this year so I wouldn't be surprised if he finishes in the top ten again next year. Speaking of which, by the time you read this the 2025, 5km Handicap will be underway. You can join in at any point in the year but to have a chance of making the podium you will need to complete ten rounds (you'll notice that seven people got more than 900 points this year, so even winning nine rounds wouldn't be enough). If you would like to take part in 2025 but haven't put your name down yet, you can still get points for January if you let me know by the last parkrun in this month.
